QUIET REIGNS IN POLICE CIRCLES

Have Made No Arrests in Few Days Previous to The Election.

IS UNCOMMON OCCURRENCE

Receive Warning to be on Lookout For Prisoners Escaped From Indianapolis Jail.

Police circles never have been as quiet on the few days previous to election in the past few years as they have been here. The police have made no arrests for several days, which included the Republican rally all day Saturday, yesterday and today. The police have had no call and are "resting on their oars," so to speak until the election has passed.

They had some little commotion in their circle yesterday when it was reported to them that Alfred Taylor had fallen in a ditch on the east pike leading to the cemetery. They investigated the report and found Taylor, the stump blower, in an intoxicated condition along the road. He had fallen down a steep embankment and was unable to get back up on the road. He suffered several bruises in the fall. He was taken home as he had caused no trouble.

The police received notice of the escape of three prisoners from the Marion county jail and were warned to be on the lookout for the escaped criminals. The three men, whose names are Robert D. McKellits, Joseph Marquette and Alvan James, escaped from the jail by sawing the iron bars of their cell sliding down an improvised rope of bed clothing. Another prisoner was caught in the act of climbing out and was returned to the jail. Two men were arrested in Richmond as suspects but were later found to be the wrong men.

JUDGE SPARKS SAID TO BE WINNER NOW

Consensus of Opinion is That He Will Head Republican Ticket in This County.

LAST DAY IN SHELBYVILLE

That Judge Will M. Sparks, Republican candidate for judge of the sixteenth judicial circuit, will lead the Republican ticket in Rush county is the general belief among Republican politicians here. He seems to be beyond all reasonable doubt the most popular man who ever graced the Republican ticket, the word coming from Democrats and Republicans alike that they intend to vote for him. Local men recite instances of prominent Democrats declaring that they will vote for the re-election of the judge on account of his fair and impartial methods while on the bench.

Judge Sparks, who has been making a very extensive and intense campaign during his spare moments, spent his last day in the factories of Shelbyville. Yesterday morning, he received a telegram from the factory men of Shelbyville extending to him an invitation to go through the factories today and make a personal canvass of the employees. Judge Sparks was to have a man to conduct him through and introduce him.

VOTE EARLY IS SLOGAN.

Vote early is the last word which is to be uttered to every voter of Rush county. It has always been the effort of Rush county Republicans to get the voters out early so that all of the stragglers can be brought in. The effort will be a greater one tomorrow. It's the last word—vote early and vote 'er straight."

STARTS HERE WITH DAUGHTER'S BODY

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Wilson Leave Portland, Ore., and Expect to Arrive Soon.

TO BURY LUCILE WILSON HERE

Word has been received here this morning by telegraph that Mr. and Mrs. Dick Wilson left their home in Portland Oregon, yesterday with the body of their daughter Miss Lucile, who died last May 11th, of typhoid fever. It will be remembered that the Wilson family left here the first of this year for permanent residence in the west. Shortly after that their daughter, who was well known here and who had a host of friends, took sick and finally died. The news of her death was a great shock to her friends and relatives here. It is expected that Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will arrive with the corpse Wednesday evening or Thursday morning. The body will be taken to the East Hill chapel where a short service will be conducted by the Rev. V. W. Tevis. Burial will be made in the East Hill cemetery.

WELL KNOWN MAN SUFFERED STROKE

Dr. I. N. Harris, Overcome Saturday Night, While on Way to Home of Rev. Meacham.

IS A RETIRED DENTIST

Dr. I. N. Harris, a retired dentist, living in North Perkins street suffered a stroke of paralysis Saturday night which affected his lower limbs. Mr. Harris was on his way to the home of Rev. J. B. Meacham in West Fifth street. When almost to the house, he was overcome and managed to crawl to the porch. The little son of Rev. Meacham found him and called to his parents. Mr. Harris was later removed to his home. This was his first stroke and he is in a very serious condition. Mr. Harris is a well-known resident of this city, having lived here many years. His daughter, Miss Roberta Harris of Columbus, Ohio, was called to his bed side.

BOTH PARTIES ARE CONFIDENT

On Eve of Election Cohorts of Each Great Political Party Predict Landslides.

CANDIDATES ARE ON QUI VIVE

Republicans Plan to Get Vote Out Early—to Get Returns in Sheriff's Office.

On the eve of the election all of the cohorts of the Republican and Democratic forces are set in readiness for the strenuous day which is to come tomorrow. The followers of each party are confident of victory and each county chairman avers more forcibly today that his party will sweep not only the county but the State.

The opinion that both parties will be victorious, prevails not only in Rush county but also all over the sixth district. The Republicans here have a perfect organization and expect to get out every Republican voter in the city as well as in the county. They expect to redouble their efforts tomorrow to make a good showing and every party worker has consented to assist in the fray. They will receive returns in the sheriff's office tomorrow night.

From New Castle comes the word that Congressman W. O. Barnard believes confidentially that he will be returned to the house of representatives by a good majority. He stated that he believed his chances for re-election are more favorable than they were a few years ago when he was elected by a plurality of 1,174. He carried Rush county by 283.

In the Democratic counties of his district he is of the firm belief that his opponent, Finly H. Gray of Connersville will not get as large a vote as did Thomas H. Kuhn two years ago, and he expects to carry all of the Republican counties of the district by increased majorities.

From Shelbyville comes the word from Elmer Bassett, Republican chairman of the sixth district, that the district is safely Republican with a plurality of 1,500 for Barnard. John E. Osborn of Greensburg, Democratic chairman predicts the greatest Democratic landslide in recent years. cratic landslide in recent years. Finly Gray, Democratic candidate for representative, believes he will be elected by a good plurality.

AFTER ELECTION COMES WEDDING

Adolphus Cameron, Democratic Candidate For County Surveyor, to be Married on Next Day.

BOUGHT HIS LICENSE TODAY

Adolphus Cameron and Miss Lusy Kinnet, daughter of John Kinnet of Anderson township, were granted a marriage license this afternoon. The wedding will take place at the home of the bride's parents, Wednesday, November 9th. Mr. Cameron is at present the city surveyor of Rushville and is the Democratic candidate for county surveyor. Mr. Kinnet, the bride's father is a well known farmer and is the Republican trustee of Anderson township.

MAN'S DUTY TO KNOW POLITICS

The Rev. John B. Meacham Declares That Citizen Can be a Christian and Politician.

SAYS HE HAS HEARD MANY

Minister Declares That Interest is More Intense Than He Ever Witnessed it.

There is every reason to believe that a man can be a Christian from a political standpoint," said the Rev. John B. Meacham in his sermon on, "Does it Pay to be a Christian From a Political Standpoint?" at the First Presbyterian church last night. "Politics and religion are inseparable; if a man does not put his religion into politics, he is not doing his duty and if a man does not take any interest in politics he is not doing his duty. We should all put forth every effort to learn the issues of the campaign and then vote the way we think. We should vote for the right man, the man whom we are convinced is right.

"I have attended every political meeting in Rushville in this campaign, not necessarily to get points for this sermon but to learn the issues of the day. I have been astounded at the marked interest taken and the manifest enthusiasm. It is truly the greatest campaign which I ever witnessed. I marvelled that mothers would take their babes and brave the cold to attend the political meeting Saturday night. That the interest is intense, there is no doubt."

The Rev. Mr. Meacham showed the derivation of the word politics, pointing out that it came from the Greek and meant attitude toward the government. He endeavored to show that politics had been an important topic since the beginning of the world. He declared that politics is the one subject upon which all men should think rationally and upon which all men should use their best judgment.

"I have no doubt but that all of the great orators, who I have heard here in the past few weeks have been sincere in their statements and believed all that they have said. I have heard Standpatters; I have heard Insurgents and I have heard Democrats. It is wonderful oratory that I have listened to and all, I believe, comes from the hearts of the men who have spoken. But if we are to believe all we have heard, we would be in an awful quandry. All that I have heard can not be true as many of the declarations are conflicting, so that evidently some untruths have been spoken."

The pastor declared that he could quote from the bible instances, showing that every phase of politics occurred in bible times. He read scripture, pointing out authority for handling every question, regarding both politics and religion; authority for a sermon on graft; capital and labor; primary election; corrupt electioneering; machine politics and wicked officials. He read from scripture, where it is said that a politician must be an able man; must fear God—but not necessarily be the member of any church; a man of truth and hating unjust gain.

The expression, "Go to Halifax," originated in the terror with which rogues used to view the law of Halifax, Yorkshire county, England. The law was that criminals should be condemned first and inquired upon after.

JET PARKER WILL LEAVE THE CITY

Manager of O. P. C. H. Will go to Cleveland, O., to Work For United Clothes Company.

MADE MANY FRIENDS HERE

Jet Parker, who for the past three years, has been the manager of the O. P. C. H. clothing store, will leave in two or three weeks to work for Richmond Brothers and Company, Cleveland, Ohio, owners of the United Clothes stores which are located in large cities all over the country.

It is with much regret that Rushville business men as well as men in other walks of life, see Mr. Parker leave the city. He has been actively engaged in the business life, working with the members of the Rushville Retail Merchants Association to bring about a better city. To Mr. Parker may be ascribed largely the great success of the "Big Wednesdays," which were held all summer. He, as chairman of the advertising committee and one of the directors of the Association, worked untiringly and many times alone to make the bargain days popular and he succeeded in a great measure. Mr. Parker came here and took charge of the Knecht Clothing Company, building it up so that it is now one of the leading stores of the city. Mr. and Mrs. Parker have made many friends during their stay in this city and it is with—it might be termed sweet sadness—that they see them go, but their friends feel that Mr. Parker will "make good" in larger fields. Mr. Parker came here from New Castle, where his father, Benjamin S. Parker, now lives.

The management of the Knecht Clothing company now passes into the hands of Jack Knecht, one of the owners. His brother, John Knecht, of Washington township, who formerly managed a garage here will go to work in the store.

WATSON BEFORE HIS OWN PEOPLE

Is Given Greatest Ovation Accorded Any Man in Campaign Here This Fall.

GREETED BY LONG APPLAUSE

Makes Republican Address, Expounding Policies and Achievements of G. O. P. in Laudatory Terms.

Marked with the greatest ovation which has been given any man in the campaign here this fall, James E. Watson, spoke to his own people in the Davis sale barn Saturday night. The crowd was as large as the afternoon assemblage to hear Senator Beveridge and was a more enthusiastic one. The crowd began to gather before seven o'clock and the people continued to pour into the place after the speaker had started. In the afternoon, when Mr. Watson's name was mentioned at the Beveridge meeting, it was greeted with prolonged applause which predicted what was to come in the evening. The meeting was preceded by fireworks and a band concert. The parade was held but was shortened on account of the disagreeable weather and muddy streets.

Mothers and their babes, children, aged men and women and people of all classes gathered to hear the local statesman. There was great interest in his speech, as it was the only one which he delivered in the State in this campaign. Long before the time for the beginning of the meeting, shouts of Watson were common all over the house. Others took up the name and it was carried from throat to throat in continued shouts. When the band could be heard in the distance, again the name of the former congressman was yelled and re-echoed from the roof and walls of the barn. When Mr. Watson appeared, he was greeted by thunderous applause and shouts which rent the air. The audience arose as one, many persons standing on their seats and paying a tribute to the common and plain man, who is neither candidate nor office-seeker, but who merely came to make a Republican address.

"I esteem it a great pleasure to make my first speech in this State this campaign and the only one, before my own people, who have honored me tonight with their applause," said Mr. Watson.

"I believe in the principles which I think, preach and live. I am a Republican. There is only one interpretation to the word. I am a plain Republican. I am not a Populist, nor a Socialist and I am far away from being a Democrat.

"One night recently my friend, Sam Ralston, in a speech here took occasion to compliment me, and my Democratic friends applauded. I thank them for that, but I wished their help most when I needed it two years ago this election.

"I am not a candidate for any office; I am not seeking anything from the people, nor shall I ever be a candidate again so far as I know.

"I cannot put my convictions in a wheelbarrow and peddle them around to suit the times. I believe in my convictions and for that reason I am a Republican.

"I am not claiming that everything ever done was accomplished by the Republican party, but the party must have the proper policies of government to make for success, and the policies of the Republican party have made the country what it is today. It has had control of this country since 1861—with the exception of two terms of office—and then the re-

What Ails Us?

The Reason Given for the Disintegration of the American Family

What is the cause of the disintegration of the American family?

Hot air!

Not hot air in the senseless language of the day, but with its original meaning.

What is the real reason for the divorce evil?

Steam heat.

Why are there so many restless men and dissatisfied women, frivolous girls and unrestrained boys? Why are we losing our powers of contemplation and contentment? Why are we on the eternal rush after something we find we don't want very much when he get it?

The answer comes in one word—Furnaces.

Sounds silly, doesn't it? But think it over.

The discovery of fire, or the ability to make and maintain it was the first great step which distinguished the man-beast from the dumb critters. As he formed his fellows into wandering tribes, the central fire of the stopping place was the rallying point around which sat the council of war or of peace. Today a campfire has something irresistibly alluring about it.

The fire was the symbol of man's religious beginnings, the altar and the burnt offering were a vital part of our ancestral religion.

As man learned the value of the family, he made a hearth for his own particular fire, gathered his family about it and built a home around them. Down the ages the hearthstone has been the symbol of home, patriotism and virtue.

But alas! it has become only a symbol. The stove dealt a dastardly blow to the heart, and the sturdiness of our civilization began to sap itself.

Yet the race rallied, for the stove was still an enclosed and gleaming fire-place and it still made a center for the family.

But the furnace; who ever saw a laughing, loving family gathered about a furnace? Who ever invited the faithful few of his friends about him and bade them make merry over a register?

For the sacred fires of our ancestors! was once a thrilling and rallying cry.

"For hearth and home!" was another.

But who would give two whoops in Hades for a cry of "For hot water pipes and steam-cocks!"

But why argue about it?

Try it! that's all; try it. Gather your family around an open fire. If you can't get it any other way, you might burn down the useless, gas-heated, make-believe-home you're living in. But be sure you gather around that open fire. Just gather that's all. And wait.

Pretty soon you'll be thinking and talking the sanest and sensiblest things. Yes, you will, really; even you. You won't know yourself.

And life begins to look reasonable. A sweet serenity fills your soul, as an unwonted comfort soaks into the marrow of your bones, says the Logansport Reporter. How ready the responses to a jocular remark! How clear the profound meaning!

If you do not linger long and arise feeling blessedly better and equal to the battle of life, you're a degenerate a hopeless, fireproof degenerate.

Haven't you noticed that when a family gets a few hundred dollars ahead it hankers for the steam-heated flat? But after a few years of "fating" and when it has acquired a few thousands, it builds a home and the first thing in the new, big house is a high fire-place. Father says it's ridiculous and mother says it will make an awful muss and daughter says it is nonutilitarian and none of them know why they want it—but you and I do.

We want it is the last obstinate instinctive cry of self-preservation demanding a chance, a chance to re-establish the sweetness and sanctity of the family, of the hearth, of the home!

Lone Passenger Seriously Hurt.

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 7.—A Grand Trunk passenger train crashed into a streetcar on a grade crossing in this city, demolishing half of the car and carrying the rear trucks 300 feet down the track. The motorman and conductor escaped without injury, but the lone passenger, Miss Jennie Davis, was seriously hurt.

Lame back comes on suddenly and is extremely painful. It is caused by rheumatism of the muscles. Quick relief is afforded by applying Chamberlain's Liniment. Sold by all dealers.

COUNTY NEWS

Glenwood.

Winter is a stern erality.

Mr. and Mrs. Arrow Stevens and sons, Leroy, Harold and Lowell arrived here from Oklahoma, a three days and night ride. They intend to make their home for the present at Orange.

The average man that enters the voting booth on election day and does not support Senator Beveridge votes against his very own interests. There has not been a congressman before Hon. A. J. Beveridge investigated every subject and question of vital interest to each American citizen. Let every Rush county citizen take heed and be wise and vote to send Beveridge back to the senate.

It is a hard thing to get the party to understand who is meant by any article that may be written.

There has been six new buildings put up this year and Mr. Jones' make seven.

The town has no town marshal, everything is at loose ends; no drunkenness reported since there were no marshal.

It seems that the street commissioner had a substitute engaged or at the president of the board acted in his stead. There was quite a deal of dissatisfaction about that way of doing business.

Quite a good many have begun cribbing corn.

A TOSS-UP

It is Thus Many Regard Tomorrow's Outcome in Indiana.

Indianapolis, Nov. 7.—With the campaign throughout the state practically closed, both parties are apparently confident of victory. Estimates of the result differ widely according to the political glasses through which it is seen, but the safest guess at the close of the campaign is that Indiana is doubtful. The betting of the past few days has been in favor of the Democrats, and there have been few Republicans who cared to take chances even at odds. There is a bet posted of $1,000 to $4,000 that Indiana, Ohio, New York and New Jersey will go Democratic, but it has not been taken. Five to four is being offered on Marion county, and Democratic even money on the state goes begging.

Prisoners Get Away.

Indianapolis, Nov. 7.—Robert D. McKellits, charged with having robbed the Acton (Ind.) postoffice; Joseph Marquette, charged with having stolen a horse at Springfield, O., and Alvin James, charged with having violated the federal pure food law, escaped from the county jail Sunday by sawing through the bars of a window. Two men believed to be McKellits and Marquette were arrested at Richmond on suspicion and are being held.

GET INSIDE.

Your Friends and Neighbors in Rushville Will Show You How.

Rubbing the back won't cure backache.

A liniment may relieve, but can't cure.

Backache comes from the inside—from the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills get tinside—They cure sick kidneys.

Here is Rushville proof that this is so.

Samuel A. Brown, 527 West First street, Rushville, Ind., says: "I cannot speak too highly of Doan's Kidney Pills, for I know from personal experience that they live up to the claims made for them. About three years ago I was suddenly taken with an attack of backache and it steadily grew worse. I could hardly raise my foot from the ground and if I stooped it really seemed as if my back was going to break. When someone advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, I did so, and I was certainly surprised by their promptness in relieving me. In three days I was free from backache and felt better in everyway. Since then I have procured Doan's Kidney Pills from F. B. Johnson & Co.'s Drug Store and have seldom been without a supply in my house. Doan's Kidney Pills are worthy of the highest praise."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

GENERAL WEYLER.

Famous Spanish Officer to Crush Republican Movement.

Madrid, Nov. 7.—Attempts at Sabdell and Barcelona to carry out the intention of the strikers to make a great labor demonstration Sunday were quickly suppressed. There was some shooting, but the disturbances were not serious.

A MOVEMENT TO STOP CROOKED MEASURES

Indiana Food and Drug Commissioner's Complaint.

Indianapolis, Nov. 7.—H. E. Barnard, state food and drug commissioner, will ask the next legislature to pass a law regulating weights and measures. Mr. Barnard has found that many food products, prepared by the large corporations and by packers generally, are short in weight. Nine of fifteen sample one-half pounds of butter purchased recently by F. W. Tucker, state food inspector, were found to be short in weight.

Mr. Barnard explained the value of a law regulating weights and measures and providing penalties for its violation.

"Suppose," he said, "you purchase a can of syrup, advertised to contain one quart, and find that you got, not one quart, but seven gills. There is no law in Indiana by which the canning company or the grocer can be punished. We propose to protect the people against this injustice."

The Indiana state food and drug commissioner has tried in vain to obtain from the federal government a set of weights and measures. In a letter received from Louis A. Fischer, chief of the division of weights and measures of the bureau of standards, Mr. Barnard was informed that Indiana received a set in 1847 and a set of metric standards in 1876, and that they had been lost. Mr. Fischer said a federal inspector visited Terre Haute and Indianapolis a year ago and found no trace of the early standards.

He declared it not to the credit of a state to lose a set of weights and measures costing more than $1,000. By an act of congress the bureau of standards is prohibited from supplying more than one set of standards to a single state.

The enforcement of a law against short weights will save the people of Indiana thousands of dollars annually, Mr. Barnard declared. The enactment of such a law is the next step to be taken in the crusade against unscrupulous packers, canners and retailers.

A Boy and a Gun.

Monticello, N. Y., Nov. 7.—Archie Sherwood, twelve years old, shot and fatally wounded his eighty-year-old grandmother, Mrs. William Rose, at the home of the old lady. Young Sherwood claims he was adjusting a Flobert rifle, when it accidentally discharged and his grandmother fell to the floor with a groan. The physicians in attendance think she cannot live.

Erbstein Again Indicted.

Chicago, Nov. 7.—Charles E. Erbstein, attorney for Lee O'Neil Browne in his bribery trials, who was indicted on a charge of jury tampering in the recent trial, has been indicted again—this time on a charge of conspiracy to do an unlawful act: the defamation of State's Attorney Wayman's character. The indictment also accuses divers other persons of the same offense.

Limits Fees of Treasurers.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 7.—Attorney General Stead, in an opinion given to State's Attorney Robert H. Scholes of Peoria, holds that the county treasurer is entitled to only 1 per cent commission on taxes which he has collected for the city and has turned over to the proper officer of the city.

Largest Sailer Wrecked.

London, Nov. 7.—The five-masted ship Preussen, the largest sailing vessel in the world, lies wrecked in Crab Bay, Dover, where she is pounding on the rocks in a fierce southwest gale. Her crew are still aboard, it being impossible on account of the heavy sea, to reach her.

Tree Fell on Boy.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 7.—Claude Coomes, aged fifteen, was crushed to death at Early Times, Ky., when a heavy oak tree which three companions were sawing down fell upon the lad. He was the main support of a widowed mother.

TWO FINE PICKLES

PROPERLY PUT UP, WILL KEEP INDEFINITELY.

Cucumbers and Walnuts Are About as Generally Popular as Any That the Housewife Can Put Up for Winter.

Cousin Ruth's Cucumber Pickles.—The pickles take about a week in the making, allowing ten minutes a day, but they will keep indefinitely and are crisp and delicious to the end.

Take half a bushel of small cucumbers, wash them, and let them lie in a jar of very cold water for 24 hours. At the expiration of this time, pour off the water and replace it with a hot brine, composed of one quart of coarse salt and sufficient water to cover. After another 24 hours have elapsed, pour off the brine, wash in cold water, and, instead of the brine, put on hot alum water, using one-quarter of a pound of alum with the requisite quantity of water. Let the cucumbers stand in this for 12 hours, then wash them, and let them lie in cold water for the next 12 hours. At this point scald equal parts of vinegar and water and pour it over the cucumbers. The next morning remove the mixture, reheat, and pour it back again. Do this two more mornings—four in all. On the fourth morning take sufficient vinegar—fresh cider vinegar if possible—to cover the cucumbers. Add five pounds of brown sugar, and a quarter of a pound of cassia buds. Heat all together; pour over the cucumbers, and set the pickles away. Some small red peppers may be placed on top, if that flavor is desired.

Mrs. Hogan's Pickled Walnuts.—Gather the nuts when good size, but still tender enough to be pierced with a coarse needle. Prick several places with the needle and put in a stone jar. Cover with a strong brine and let remain three days. Drain and put in a sufficient brine to remain three days longer. Drain again and spread on a platter for several hours. Put one gallon of vinegar in a porcelain-lined kettle and add to it one tablespoonful each of whole cloves, allspice and ginger root; two tablespoonfuls whole pepper-corns and one dozen blades of mace. Put the kettle over the fire and when the liquor boils, cook ten minutes. Place the nuts in a jar and strain the boiling liquid over them. Cover tightly.

Birds' Nests.

Four hard-boiled eggs, one-half pound of sausage meat, one egg, one-quarter pound crushed vermicelli, watercress. Put the eggs into boiling water and let the water cover them; then boil them gently for 20 minutes. Take them out and place them in a basin of cold water, when cold shell them. Divide the sausage meat into four portions, and cover each egg entirely with sausage meat. Flatten each end and get them cock shape, roll them in a little flour, touch them all over with a well-beaten egg, cover with vermicelli and fry a golden brown in boiling fat. The fat must cover them. Drain on paper, cut them in halves with a sharp knife and dish on watercress.

Care of Linen.

One of the most important departments in the management of a household is that which embraces a care of linen. Accordingly when this is well dried and put away in the closet the next duty is to secure it from the effects of damp and insects. These intruders are often destructive, but they may be prevented from doing injury by making the bags and filling with lavender, cedar shavings or a strong perfume and placing among the linen. In all cases it will be found that the linen as well as all the other washable articles will be economized by being examined and where necessary carefully repaired previous to sending to the laundry.

Bryn Mawr Corn Cake.

Add to one pint grated corn one-half cupful flour, one-quarter cupful milk, two eggs, whites and yolks beaten separately, and a dessert spoonful melted butter. Add the yolks to the corn, then the milk, flour and a teaspoonful of salt. Beat well, then fold in lightly the stiffly whipped whites of the two eggs and bake on a hot and well greased griddle.

Gravy Soup.

One pound of beef, one pound of bones, two ounces of butter, three pints of cold water, one carrot, onions, turnip, pepper and salt, one ounce flour, one mushroom. Cut the meat in small pieces, break the bones, cut up the vegetables finely. Put the butter in stewpan, when hot put in the meat bones and vegetables and brown them well, then stir in flour, add seasoning and the cold water, let all simmer gently for three hours; strain and serve. Remove scum as it rises.

Tapioca Custard.

For a tapioca custard use four cupfuls of milk, two of melted tapioca, the yolks of two eggs, four tablespoonfuls of sugar and one teaspoonful of salt. Stir all thoroughly together and flavor as desired. Bake in a pudding dish.

Fish Omelet.

When you have any fish left over chop it up and season with salt and pepper. Warm it in a little milk or butter. Make a plain omelet and when ready to fold spread on the hot fish. Roll up and serve.

YOU SAVE MONEY READING ADVERTISEMENTS

A store can afford to handle the best goods at the lowest prices that does the most business.

You can not limit a store by its size or location for the amount of business it will do in a year

The store which can afford to serve customers to the best advantage is the one that can turn over the goods more frequently and sell the most goods in a year.

The goods would remain on the shelves a long time if the merchant did not advertise continually and tell the people what he has for sale.

The goods become old before they are sold.

Therefore the store at which to trade is the store that advertises

This is true from the standpoint of variety and style, also from the standpoint of economy, for the merchant who advertises does a larger amount of business every year than the merchant who does not advertise and therefore can serve you to a better advantage.

The merchant who tells the public what he has for sale and why it is good is the one to trade with.

To Give Away $75,000

The eleventh anniversary of the International Live Stock Exposition will be held at the Union Stock Yards, Chicago, on the dates of November 26th to December 3d and will be wider in scope, bigger in entries and greater in importance than any of its predecessors.

Seventy-five thousand dollars will be given away in prizes, which will be awarded by the most expert and distinguished judges in this country and from abroad.

The importance of this show from a breeding as well as an educational point of view cannot be measured, realized or understood except from a personal visit and a systematic study of its extraordinary proceedings.

Most excellent newspaper accounts are published, and the breeders' and farmers' journals deal with it in a most comprehensive and masterly manner; but it must be seen to be appreciated; it must be studied to be understood.

It is the greatest school in instruction of its kind that has ever been presented to breeders, farmers, stockmen and others who are interested in the live stock industry, and an institution of practical information that teaches in a fortnight more than can be learned in double treble and quadruple the time anywhere else.

The International Live Stock Exposition at Chicago is a stockman's store of knowledge, an encyclopedia of breeding and feeding information that is presented in such practical, simple and easily understood methods, that the interested intelligent visitor must of a necessity carry away with him a fund of useful and practical information that he could not buy for dollars anywhere else in so short a time.

The lessons learned from watching the judging by these masters of live stock breeding cannot be gained from books.

The comparison of the various champions and other prize winners with their less fortunate brethren shows the breeder and student the weak points and shortcomings of these which do not reach the required standard; and so these men go home, carrying with them an object lesson that can be acquired nowhere else, and a fund of breeding knowledge that will stand by them and be their very best friend.

Every one whose calling, whose interests are centered in the breeding and feeding industry should religiously attend this exposition, for it will pay him over and over again, no matter what the apparent cost may be.

The old, old story, told times without number, and repeated over and over again for the last 36 years, but it is always a welcome story to those in search of health—There is nothing in the world that cures coughs and colds as quickly as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Newspapers Roast Columbus

Neighboring papers are now having fun at the expense of Columbus because of the poor showing made by that city as a result of the announcement of the 1910 population.

The Franklin Star, a particularly spiteful little two by four sheet, has the following to say:

"Columbus is kicking because the count of the enumerators only gives the city 8,813 population. Every disinterested person, who is a judge at all, says that Columbus, notwithstanding all her boasting, is not the city she was ten years ago, and the report of the enumerator bears out this assertion."

And in another place the same paper says:

"A census report says the cities are increasing in population at the expense of the country districts. But the people are not locating at Columbus, Ind., it would seem."

The Greensburg News makes the following comment:

"Poor little Columbus down in Bartholomew county received a solar plexus blow today. Citizens of that little hamlet were badly shocked this morning when they read the announcement of the census returns showing their town to have a population of 8,813. This is but a gain of 683 over the report of 1900. The Columbus Republican, commenting upon the census returns, states there is a grave mistake and charges that some of the enumerators have failed to secure a complete list. They expected the city to show a population of at least 10,000 and are urging that a recount be taken."

The Rushville Republican's comment is:

"Columbus, Ind., is not satisfied with the census count, which gives it a population of 8,813, a gain of 683 in ten years. They are demanding a recount. This dissatisfaction comes from the preposterous population claims between the census years."

The Seymour Republican sends the following from its sand-locked village:

"The census enumerators evidently failed to visit the cemetery and some other residence sections of Columbus, as the census report gives that city but 8,813. This is a gain of only 683 in ten years. Columbus has claimed 10,000 and the deepest gloom has settled over the place. A recount may be asked."

Croup is most prevalent during the dry cold weather of the early winter months. Parents of young children should be prepared for it. All that is needed is a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Many mothers are never without it in their homes and it has never disappointed them. Sold by all dealers.

Are Proud of Their Game

Farmers are growing more jealous of the wild game on their farms each year. It is no longer so much fear of damage to their stock, as it has become a conviction that game on their farms are there property, and that no man has a right to hunt on their farm. They used to feel that it was small to deny a hunter the right to shoot wild game on their farms, but that feeling seems to be passing away. Many farmers like to hunt, they say, as well as men who come out from the towns and cities, and they feel that if they allow outsiders to come to their farms and kill all the game they will have no game to hunt themselves. When a hunter asks for the privilege of hunting on a farm now, many farmers feel like it is presumptions in him to do so, and they do not hesitate to turn him down. Many farmers are proud of the game on their farm.

One man said that there were many pigeons around his barn and he would not care if a hunter were to shoot some of them, but if there were a covey of quail on his place he would not want anyone to kill them.

Another man said that there were squirrels in one of his pastures in front of his house. They have become so tame that they come close to the house. That man of course does not want those squirrels of which he is so proud, killed.

Another farmer was mentioned who had watched some nice squirrels with interest and pleasure for months in his grove with no thought of killing them away.

All farmers are not opposed to hunters, but most of them are. They would just as soon a hunter would kill some of the chickens as to kill a covey of quail on their farms. Many do not want rabbits on their farm killed. Careless hunters have been responsible for much of the prejudice, but other conditions have also much to do with the present feeling.

THE ELEVATION OF THE SCHOOLS

Various Reforms Proposed By Superintendents.

TO ENFORCE ANTI-FRAT LAW

This Is One of the Measures Urged at Recent Meeting of City and Town School Superintendents' Association—Interclass Contests Favored in Preference to the Present Ofttimes Hurtful Interscholastic Contests.

Indianapolis, Nov. 7.—Interclass athletics in high schools in preference to athletic contests between different schools, and the abolishment of interscholastic football by the state high school athletic association were favored in resolutions adopted by the City and Town School Superintendents' association at its closing session here.

Although there is a law against high school fraternities, they are still in existence in some places where the school authorities have been inactive, and the state board of education is contemplating taking measures against schools harboring fraternities in order that the law may be fully complied with. The resolutions adopted by the superintendents indorsed the proposed action of the state board.

Other things favored by resolutions were the proposed bill for a teachers' disability and retirement law, legislation proposed by Dr. J. N. Hurty of the state board of health for the medical inspection of the schools and sanitary schoolhouses, the playground movement, the greater use of school property by the public, the rearranging of the courses of study in the public schools so that there will be more flexibility in promotion and the choice of subjects, and the establishment of a uniform system of records, banks and reports for the public schools all over the state.

The committee which reported a new plan for the apportionment of the public school fund to the various counties was thanked by the association, which expressed the hope that the report might be the beginning of a correct solution of the apportionment problem. The proposed action of the state board of education in establishing a one-book geography course instead of a two-book course was not favored by the association, which passed resolutions for the two-book course.

When a cold becomes settled in the system, it will take several days' treatment to cure it, and the best remedy to use is Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It will cure quicker than any other, and also leaves the

THANKSGIVING DAY PROCLAMATION OUT

The President Calls Attention to Objects of Gratitude.

Washington, Nov. 7.—Thanksgiving day will be celebrated on Thursday, Nov. 24. President Taft's formal Thanksgiving proclamation reads as follows:

By the President of the United States of America: A proclamation. This year of 1910 is drawing to a close. The records of population and harvests, which are the index of progress, show vigorous national growth and the health and prosperous well-being of our communities throughout this land and in our possessions beyond the seas. These blessings have not descended upon us in restricted measure, but overflow and abound. They are the blessings and bounty of God.

We continue to be at peace with the rest of the world. In all essential matters our relations with other peoples are harmonious, with an ever-growing reality of friendliness and depth of recognition of mutual dependence. It is especially to be noted that during the past year great progress has been achieved in the cause of arbitration and the peaceful settlement of international disputes. Now, therefore, I, William H. Taft, president of the United States of America, in accordance with the wise custom of this government, do appoint Thursday, Nov. 24, 1910, as a day of national thanksgiving and prayer, enjoining the people upon that day to meet in their churches for the praise of the Almighty God and to return heartfelt thanks to him for all his goodness and loving kindness.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington, this fifth day of November, in the year of Our Lord one thousand nine hundred and ten, and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and thirty-fifth.

W. H. TAFT, By the President, Alva A. Adee, acting secretary of state.

Moving Picture Progress

No doubt motion pictures will always be exhibited to a great extent for entertainment purposes but recent developments along more serious lines are interesting says a writer in "Success Magazine."

One film recently exhibited under the auspices of the American Civic Association was entitled "The Filthy Fly," and showed graphically the unsanitary habits of that insect. A wonderful new machine, by the way, taking two thousand pictures a second, has greatly facilitated the photographing of insects on the wing. It is hoped that there will be new light on the problem of flight as a result of the new device.

Moving pictures as a means of propaganda are suggested in the fact that films are being prepared showing the dangers of unhygienic dairy farms and teaching the value of clean milk. Pathe Freres, the well-known French film manufacturers, are now producing a sort of picture newspaper, setting forth current events in pictorial form. Thus far, it is said, these moving picture papers carry no advertising.

Of very great importance is the successful series of experiments in Munich, in which X-ray motion pictures of the internal organs of the human body were obtained. By the new device, digestion, for example, can be studied actually in process. The discovery promises to add greatly to the sum of our knowledge of physiology and disease.

HORSE NOTES

(Western Horseman.)

Harrie Jones, Rushville, Ind., has marked twenty-one horses from 2:03 1/4 to 2:10 1/4 and forty-seven better than 2:15. He does his training at Riverside Park, Rushville, which is considered one of the earliest tracks in the North. The stables are good, the grass and water is of the best and there are excellent roads for jogging. He is in a position to take several more horses for winter training and will give them his best attention, and will guarantee satisfaction. He will also sell and buy horses on commission.

At Greensburg, N. C., Oct. 12, one-half mile track, "John W." by Alverton, dam by Baron Posey, won the 2:18 trot in straight heats. Best time 2:17 1/4. There were seven starters. "John W." was bred by Theodore Abercrombie and sold as a two-year-old to Georgia parties.

State License.

NEW RULE MORE SATISFACTORY

A new rule adopted by the department of public instruction requires applicants for a sixty months' license to teach to have held first a three year State license in the common branches during the year of application.

Heretofore applicants took the examination in two sections. First they were required to make a three-years' grade in the common branches for the first section and to pass an examination in advanced subjects for the second division. The old rule caused many misunderstandings. The new rule is expected to be more satisfactory.

AMUSEMENTS

The Star-Grand offers two subjects tonight. The first is a scenic entitled "From the Arctic to the Tropics." The Central Railroad of Peru, South America, the most remarkable of all railroads, starts at sea level at Callao and runs to the highest point reached by any railway in the world, which is sixteen thousand feet above sea level. Starting at the highest point in a gravity car and coasting one hundred miles down the slopes of the famous Andes, passing in the space of a few minutes from the Arctic to the Tropics, seeing the gradual change in the scenery. The second subject entitled "Bumptious as a Fireman" is a comedy in which the fun is fast and furious, and will prove a jolly addition to the season's fun in photoplays. Earl Robertson will sing "Her Name is Mary Donohue."

The Vaudet has for tonight a Thanhouser film, "The Little Hero of Holland." The hero of the story, like all children of Holland, is early impressed with the fact that the safety of the whole community depends upon the strength of the dyke. One night he finds a hole in the dyke and bravely puts his arm into it to keep the water from flooding the town. He remains there all night and by his heroism the town is saved. A new illustrated song will be sung.

The Palace has two Edison films for tonight. The first picture, "Bumptious Plays Baseball" is a big comedy from start to finish. It deals with "Bumptious" the base ball kid who thinks he knows more about the national game than anyone, when in reality he can't play at all. The other picture, "The Farmer's Daughter" is equally as good as the first. A new illustrated song will be sung.

HOG VACCINATION IS NOT A SUCCESS

Does Not Prevent Cholera Yet Experiments Are Being Made in Bartholomew County.

IS USED IN OTHER COUNTIES

Cholera is assuming alarming proportions in Bartholomew county and vaccination is being tried in the hope of preventing the spread of the disease, but generally speaking there is not much hope that the experiment will prove successful, as it is known to have repeatedly failed in the past.

There is much more hog cholera in Johnson and Shelby counties than there is in Bartholomew county and the vaccination experiment is being freely tried out in both Johnson and Shelby.

A Columbus veterinary surgeon said that he did not believe that cholera was responsible for the death of all the hogs that are dying in Bartholomew county. He believes that some other disease, possibly the swine fever, is responsible for the death of some of the local hogs.

THE FORTUNE HUNTER

NOVELIZED BY
LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE FROM THE PLAY OF THE SAME TITLE BY WINCHELL SMITH
COPYRIGHT, 1910, BY WINCHELL SMITH AND LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

In one of Rudyard Kipling's writings he tells of "the ship that found herself," and in "The Fortune Hunter" we have the fascinating narrative of "a youth who found himself." The youth is like the ship—he had to have his course laid straight before his career began to make substantial headway. The story of Nat Duncan is one that in dramatic form, as written by Winchell Smith, has attracted the attention of thousands of playgoers throughout the country. As a novel, written by Louis Joseph Vance, it becomes a narrative of profound appeal to the young and old and especially to those of us who in our youth dwelt in a rural district far enough removed from the metropolitan centers to be practically a world in itself and to itself. Usually it is the country lad who ventures into the great cities to seek fortune and fame's favor. But here we find a down to date city youth, who, a failure at everything he had undertaken, invades the rural districts to make a millionaire of himself. That which befalls him prompted a great New York newspaper editor to say, "Every American should read this great story," for "The Fortune Hunter," in spite of its enjoyable humor, subtly pointed by its talented authors, teaches the vital lesson of the need of charity and tolerance for the less fortunate of human beings.

CHAPTER I.
RECEIVER at ear, Spaulding, of Messrs Atwater & Spaulding, importers of motoring garments and accessories, listened to the switchboard operator's announcement with grave attention, acknowledging it with a toneless "All right; send him in." Then, hooking up the desk telephone, he swung round in his chair to face the door of his private office and in a brief ensuing interval painstakingly ironed out of his face and attitude every indication of the frame of mind in which he awaited his caller. It was, as a matter of fact, anything but a pleasant one. He had a disquieting duty to perform, but that was the last thing he designed to become evident. Like most good business men, he nursed a pet superstition or two, and of the number of these the first was that he must in all his dealings present an inscrutable front, like a poker player's. Captains of industry were uniformly like that, Spaulding understood. If they entered tained emotions it was strictly in private.

Occasionally this attitude deceived others. Notably now it bewildered Duncan as he entered on the echo of Spaulding's "Come!" He had apprehended the visage of a thunderstorm with a rattle of brusque complaints. He encountered Spaulding as he had always seemed—a little, urbane figure with a blank face, the blunter for glasses whose lenses seemed always to catch the light and, glaring, mask the eyes behind them; a prosperous man of affairs, well groomed both as to body and as to mind; a machine for the transaction of business with all a machine's vivacity and temperamental responsiveness. It was just that quality in him that Duncan envied, who was vaguely impressed that if he himself could imitate, however minutely, the phlegm of a machine he might learn to ape something of its efficiency and so ultimately prove himself of some worth to the world and incidentally to Nathaniel Duncan.

"Good afternoon, Mr. Spaulding," he said, replying to a nod as he dropped into the chair that nod had indicated. A faint smile lightened his expression and made it quite engaging.

"G'd afternoon," Spaulding surveyed him swiftly, then laced his fat little fingers and contemplated them with detached intentness. "Just get in, Duncan?"

"On the 3:30 from Chicago. I got your wire," he resumed. "I mean it got me—overtook me at Minneapolis."

"You haven't wasted time."

"I fancied the matter might be urgent, sir. I gathered from the fact that you wired me to come home that you wanted my advice."

A second time Spaulding gestured with his eyebrows, for once fairly surprised out of his pose. "Your advice?"

"Yes," said Duncan evenly, "as to whether you ought to give up your customers on my route or send them a man who could sell goods."

"Well?" Spaulding admitted.

"Oh, don't think I'm boasting of my acuteness. Anybody could have guessed as much from the great number of heavy orders I have not been sending you."

"You've had bad luck."

"You mean you have, Mr. Spaulding. It was good luck for me to be drawn ing down my weekly checks, bad luck to you not to have a man who could earn them."

His desperate honesty touched Spaulding a trifle. At the risk of not seeming a business man to himself he inclined dubiously to relent, to give Duncan another chance.

"Duncan," he said, "what's the trouble?"

"I thought you knew that: I thought that was why you called me in with my route half covered."

"You mean?"

"I mean I can't sell your line."

"Why?"

"God only knows. I want to badly enough. It's just general incompetence, I presume."

"What makes you think that?"

Duncan smiled bitterly. "Experience," he said.

"You've tried—what else?"

"A little of everything, all the jobs open to a man with a knowledge of Latin and Greek and the higher mathematics—shipping clerk, timekeeper, cashier, all of 'em."

"And yet Kellogg believes in you."

Duncan nodded dolefully. "Harry's a good friend. We roomed together at college. That's why he stands for me."

"He says you only need the right opening?"

And nobody knows where that is, except my fortunate employers. It's the back door going out for mine every time. Oh, Harry's been a prince to me. He's found me four or five jobs with friends of his, like yourself. But I don't seem to last. You see, I was brought up to be ornamental and irregular rather than useful, to blow about in motorcars and keep a valet busy sixteen hours a day, and all that sort of thing. My father's failure—you know about that?"

Spaulding nodded. Duncan went on gloomily, talking a great deal more freely than he would have talked at any other time—suffering, in fact, from that species of auto-hypnosis induced by the sound of his own voice recounting his misfortunes which seems especially to affect a man down on his luck.

"That smash came when I was five years out of college—I'd never thought of turning my hand to anything in all that time. I'd always had more coin than I could spend—never had to consider the worth of money or how hard it is to earn. My father saw to all that. He seemed not to want me to work; not that I hold that against him. He'd an idea I'd turn out a genius of some sort or other, I believe. Well, he failed and died all in a week, and I found myself left with an extensive wardrobe, expensive tastes, an impractical education—and not so much of that that you'd notice it—and not a cent. I was too proud to look to my friends for help in those days—and perhaps that was as well; I sought jobs on my own. Did you ever keep books in a fish market?"

"No," Spaulding's eyes twinkled behind his large, shiny glasses.

"But what's the use of my boring you?" Duncan made as if to rise, suddenly remembering himself.

"You're not. Go on."

"I didn't mean to. Mostly, I presume, I've been blundering round an explanation of Kellogg's kindness to me, in my usual ineffectual way, but I felt an explanation was due you, as the latest to suffer through his misplaced interest in me."

"Perhaps," said Spaulding, "I am beginning to understand. Go on, I'm interested. About the fish market?"

"Oh, I just happened to think of it as a sample experience, and the last of that particular brand. I got $9 a week and earned every cent of it inhaling the atmosphere. My board cost me $6 and the other $3 afforded me a chance to demonstrate myself a captain of finance, paying laundry bills and clothing myself, besides buying lunches and such like small matters. I did the whole thing, you know, one schooner of beer a day and made my own cigarettes. Never could make up my mind which was the worst. The hours were easy, too; didn't have to get to work until 5 in the morning. I lasted five weeks at that job before I was taken sick. Shows what a great constitution I've got."

"And then?"

"Oh"—Duncan roused. "Why, then I fell in with Kellogg again; he

GRAY HAIRS BANISHED.

The old idea of using sage for darkening the hair is again coming in vogue. Ours grandmothers used to have dark, glossy hair at the age of seventy-five, while our mothers have white hair before they are fifty. Our grandmothers used to make a "sage tea" and apply it to their hair. The tea made their hair soft and glossy and gradually restored the natural color. One objection to using such a preparation was the trouble of making it, especially as it had to be made every two or three days on account of it souring quickly. This objection has been overcome and by asking almost any first-class druggist for Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur the public can get a superior preparation of sage, with the admixture of sulphur, another valuable remedy for hair and scalp troubles. Daily use of this preparation will not only quickly restore the color of the hair but will also stop the hair from falling out and make it grow. It is sold by all druggists for 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, or is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

It has been recommended by Hargrove & Mullin.

found me trying the open air cure on a bench in Washington square. Since then he's been finding me one berth after another. He's a sure enough optimist."

Spaulding shifted uneasily in his chair, stirred by an impulse whose unwisdom he could not doubt. Duncan had assuredly done his case no good by painting his shortcomings in colors so vivid; yet somehow, strangely, Spaulding liked him the better for his open hearted confession.

"Well"—Spaulding stumbled awkwardly.

"Yes; of course," said Duncan promptly, rising. "Sorry if I tired you."

"What do you mean by 'Yes, of course?'"

"That you called me in to fire me—and so that's over with. Only I'd be sorry to have you sore on Kellogg for saddling me on you. You see, he believed I'd make good, and so I did in a way; at least I hoped to."

"Oh, that's all right," said Spaulding uncomfortably. "The trouble is, you see, we've nothing else open just now, but if you'd really like another chance on the road I'll be glad to speak to Mr. Atwater about it."

"Don't you do it!" Duncan counseled him sharply, aghast. "He might say yes. And I simply couldn't accept; it wouldn't be fair to you, Kellogg or myself. It'd be charity, for I've proved I can't earn my wages, and I haven't come to that yet. No!" he concluded with determination and picked up his hat.

"Just a minute," Spaulding held him with a gesture. "You're forgetting something—at least I am. There's a month's pay coming to you. The cashier will hand you the check as you go out."

"A month's pay?" Duncan said blankly. "How's that? I've drawn up to the end of this week already, if you didn't know it."

"Of course I knew it. But we never let our men go without a month's notice or its equivalent, and—"

"No," Duncan interrupted firmly—"no; but thank you just the same. I couldn't—I really couldn't. It's good of you, but—Now," he broke off abruptly, "I've left my accounts, what there is of them, with the bookkeeping department, and the checks for my sample trunks. There'll be a few dollars coming to me on my expense account, and I'll send you my address as soon as I get one."

"But, look here!"—Spaulding got to his feet, frowning.

"No," reiterated Duncan positively, "there's no use. I'm grateful to you for your toleration of me and all that, but we can't do anything better now than call it all off. Goodbye, Mr. Spaulding."

Spaulding nodded, accepting defeat with the better grace because of an innate conviction that it was just as well after all. And, furthermore, he admired Duncan's stand, so he offered his hand—an unusual condescension. "You'll make good somewhere yet," he asserted.

"I wish I could believe it," Duncan's grasp was firm since he felt more assured of some humanity latent in his late employer. "However, goodbye."

"Good luck to you," rang in his ears as the door put a period to the interview. He stopped and took up the battered suit case and rusty overcoat which he had left outside the junior partner's office, then went on, shaking his head. "Much obliged," he said huskily to himself, "but what's the good of that. There's no room anywhere for a professional failure, and that's what I am—just a ne'er-do-well. I never realized what that meant really before, and it's certainly taken me a damn' long time to find out. But I know now, all right."

Dependently he went down to the sidewalk and merged himself with the crowd, moving with it, though a thousand miles apart from it, and presently diverging, struck across town toward the Worth street subway station.

"And the worst of it is he's too sharp not to find it out—if he hasn't by this time—and too decent by far to let me know if he has. It can't go on this way with us. I can't let him. Got to break with him somehow—now—today. I won't let him think me what I've been all along to him. Bless his foolish heart!"

There was no depreciation of Kellogg's goodness in his mood, simply determination no longer to be a charge upon it. To contemplate the sum total of the benefits he had received at Kellogg's hands since the day when the latter had found him ill and half starved, friendless as a stray pup, on the bench in Washington square staggered his imagination.

He could never repay it, he told himself, save inadequately, little by little—mostly by gratitude and such consideration as he purposed now to exhibit by removing himself and his distresses from the other's ken. Here was an end to comfort for him, an end to living in Kellogg's rooms, eating his food, busying his servants, spending his money, not so much borrowed as pressed upon him.

There crawled in his mind a clammy memory of the sort of housing he had known in past days, and he shuddered inwardly, smelling again the effluvia of dank oilcloth and musty carpets, of fishballs and fried ham, of old style plumbing and of $9 a week humanity in the unwashed raw, the odor of misery that permeated the lodgings to which his lack of means had introduced him. He could see again, and with a painful vividness of mental vision, the degenerate "brownstone fronts" that mask those haunts of wretchedness, with their flights of crumbling brownstone steps leading up to oaken portals haggard with flaking paint, flanked by squares of soiled note paper upon which inept hands had traced the warning, not "Abandon hope all ye who enter here," but "Furnished rooms to let with board."

And to this he must return, to that treadmill round of blighted days and joyless nights must set his face.

Alighting at the Grand Central station, he packed the double weight of his luggage and his cares a few blocks northward on Madison avenue ere turning west toward the bachelor rooms which Kellogg had established in the roaring Forties, just the other side of the avenue—Fifth avenue.

The elevator boy, knowing him of old, neglected to announce his arrival, and Duncan had his own key to the door of Kellogg's apartment. He let himself in with futile stealth. As was quite right and proper, Kellogg's man Robbins was in attendance, a stupefied Robbins, thunderstruck by the unexpected return of his master's friend and guest. "Good Lord!" he cried at sight of Duncan. "Beg your pardon, sir, but—it can't be you!"

"Your mistake, Robbins. Unfortunately it is," Duncan surrendered his luggage. "Mr. Kellogg in?"

"No, sir. But I'm expecting him any minute. He'll be surprised to see you back."

"Think so?" said Duncan dully. "He doesn't know me if he is."

"You see, sir, we thought you was out west."

"So you did." Duncan moved toward the door of his own bedroom, Robbins following.

"It was only yesterday I posted a letter to you for Mr. Kellogg, sir, and the address was Omaha."

"I didn't get that far. Fetch along that suit case, will you please? I want to put some clean things in it."

"Then you're not staying in town overnight, Mr. Duncan?"

"I don't know. I'm not staying here anyway." Duncan switched on the lights in his room. "Put it on the bed, Robbins. I'll pack as quickly as I can. I'm in a hurry."

"Yes, sir; but I hope there's nothing wrong."

"Then you lose," returned Duncan grimly. "Everything's wrong." He

"BEG PARDON, SIR, BUT IT CAN'T BE YOU!" jerked viciously at an obstinate bureau drawer and, when it yielded unexpectedly with the well known implishness of the inanimate, dumped upon the floor a tangled miscellany of shirts, socks, gloves, collars and ties.

"Didn't you like the business, sir?"

"No, I didn't like the business, and it didn't like me. It's the same old story, Robbins. I've lost my job again, that's all."

"I'm very sorry, sir."

"Thank you, but that's all right. I'm used to it."

"And you're going to leave, sir?"

"I am, Robbins."

"—may I take the liberty of hoping it's to take another position?"

"You may, but you lose a second time. I've just made up my mind I'm not going to hang around here any longer, that's all."

"But," Robbins ventured, hovering about with exasperating solicitude—"but Mr. Kellogg'd never permit you to leave in this way, sir."

"Wrong again, Robbins," said Duncan shortly, annoyed.

"Yes, sir. Very good, sir." With the instinct of the well trained servant Robbins started to leave, but hesitated. He was really very much disturbed by Duncan's manner, which showed a phase of his character new in Robbins' experience of him. Ordinarily reverses such as this had seemed merely to serve to put Duncan on his mettle, to infuse him with a determination to try again and win out, whatever the odds, and at such times he was accustomed to exhibit a mad irresponsibility of wit and a gaiety of spirit (whether it were a mask or no) that only out-rivalled his high good humor when things ostensibly were going well with him.

Intermittently, between his spasms of employment he had been Kellogg's guest for several years, not infrequently for months at a time, and so Robbins had come to feel a sort of proprietary interest in the young man, second only to the regard which he had for his employer.

"Beg pardon, sir," he advanced, hesitant, "but perhaps you're just feeling a bit blue. Won't you let me bring you a drop of something?"

"Of course I will," said Duncan emphatically over his shoulder. "And get it now, will you, while I'm packing? And, Robbins."

"Sir."

"Only put a little in it."

"A little what, sir?"

"Seltzer, of course."

TAFT'S FUTURE HINGES ON OHIO

At Least That Is the Way His Friends Figure It.

NEW YORK ANOTHER QUESTION

Administration Circles Feel That Personal Issue Is So Strongly Drawn in President's Own State That the Turn of the Ballot There Will Be Looked Upon as an Indorsement or Repudiation of the Administration.

Washington, Nov. 7.—President Taft and friends of the administration are looking forward with keen anxiety to the results of tomorrow's elections.
They believe the president's political future will depend largely upon the outcome. Mr. Taft's advisers acknowledge that if the Republicans are badly beaten in his own state and the house goes Democratic besides, it will be a blow that will seriously handicap efforts to make the president the party leader again in 1912.

They do not believe, however, that a Republican defeat in New York state will in any way reflect on the administration. Issues there are too clearly drawn on Roosevelt and the things he stands for. In Ohio, though the president himself has deliberately set forward the issue that the election is to be either an indorsement or a repudiation of the Taft administration, and if Governor Harmon carries the day, the Democrats and the president's enemies in his own party will make the most of the event. The president, although still clinging to hope, is practically reconciled, it is believed, to the fact that the house is going Democratic. If it does the Democrats will find him ready to drive ahead with his program. In the house merit alone will insure the adoption of at least a part of it.

Governors will be chosen in twenty-eight states, and in thirty states legislatures will be elected that will be called on to fill vacancies in the United States senate caused by expiring terms. All forecasts that have been made of the congressional elections except that by the Republican committee, gives the next house to the Democrats by majorities from five to forty-five. President Taft's advisers look to see the administration hold its own so far as congressional districts are concerned, in the Pacific coast and inter-mountain states and in the west generally with a few exceptions. They fear the greatest falling off of Republican strength in states east of the Alleghany mountains.

The indications are that the Socialist party will be represented in congress for the first time as a result of tomorrow's balloting. Two members of that party are running for congress in Milwaukee. The Prohibition party has tickets in twenty-five states; the Socialists in thirty-four; the Socialist Labor in eight. The Independent League has a full ticket in New York;
the Keystone and Industrial parties each has a ticket in Pennsylvania; the People's Independent is in the field in Nebraska, and the American party, an anti-Mormon organization, has candidates up for election in Utah.

Prohibition is a live issue in Florida, Missouri and Oregon, while the wet and dry question also has kicked up a big rumpus in Nebraska. In Texas the incoming legislature will submit to the voters for approval or rejection a constitutional amendment providing for prohibition. Oklahoma will vote on a constitutional amendment substituting local option for the present state-wide prohibition. Three states, South Dakota, Washington and Oklahoma, will vote directly on granting suffrage to women, while in Oregon a proposed amendment to the constitution grants to all taxpayers, regardless of sex, the right of suffrage.
Another new-fangled proposition up in Oregon provides for verdicts by three-fourths of a jury in civil cases. The conservation question will be passed on by the voters of Wisconsin in a proposed constitutional amendment authorizing the state to make annual appropriations for acquiring, preserving and developing water power and forests in Minnesota; also a proposed amendment authorizes the legislature to employ lands of private persons to be used for purposes of re-forestation.

Leaders of the insurgent Republicans estimate that their number will be increased from thirty to approximately seventy in the house. The general line of insurgency drawn now seems to be on whether the candidate has publicly declared for or against Cannon as speaker. Fully 100 of the nominees for congress are insurgents and have made it known that they will stand out against Uncle Joe for re-election as speaker if they are sent to Washington and the house goes Republican. Whichever way the house goes, though, there will be a lively time over the speakership. Some of the Democrats already are sharpening their knives for Champ Clark's pre-election boom, and if it gets a chance to show its head there will be a lot of slashing. The Democratic leaders already are figuring on the possibility of a line-up in the next house of Democratic insurgents against regulars, in which event the merry war that enlivened things on the Republican side last winter is likely to have a counterpart among the Democrats.

FEWER INMATES OF INDIANA'S PRISONS

Report For Fiscal Year Is Quite Encouraging.

Indianapolis, Nov. 7.—All state, penal and correctional institutions in Indiana, except the girls' school, showed a decrease in population at the close of the fiscal year 1910. The state prison had fifty-three fewer prisoners in 1910 than in 1909; the reformatory, 125 less; the woman's prison, two less,
and the boys' school, twenty-four less.
The reports of the various institutions have just been compiled by Amos W.
Butler, secretary of the board of state charities.

The five state penal and correctional institutions closed the fiscal year,
Sept. 30, with a population of 3,273.
The state prison at Michigan City had 1,097 prisoners; the reformatory at Jeffersonville, 1,068; the woman's prison at Indianapolis, 115; the girls' school at Clermont, 325; the boys' school at Plainfield, 685. The total was 200 less than on the same day a year ago.

The number of new commitments to the two prisons and the reformatory for the fiscal year was 773, as against 926 for the preceding twelve months; to the schools for girls and boys, 375 this year, as against 434 last; in other words, 153 fewer men and women, and fifty-nine fewer boys and girls in 1910 than in 1909.

HOME AGAIN

After Casting His Ballot the Colonel Is Going to Take a Long Rest.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Nov. 7.—The strenuous trip through Maryland, Ohio and Indiana has left Colonel Roosevelt pretty weary of campaigning and his voice hoarse. As soon as he hit New York Sunday morning he visited a doctor and had his throat examined. He is not alarmed about it, but he wants to take every precaution possible.

Mr. Roosevelt thinks that Stimson will be elected governor. He has not made any predictions, because he is too experienced a politician to put out positive auguries on a situation as muddled as the present one is. He expressed himself in the west as being optimistic over the outlook for a Republican victory. Mr. Roosevelt expects to cast his ballot in the morning and return to Sagamore Hill and remain there for a long time. He thinks he deserves a rest.

The threat of Judge Simeon Baldwin to sue the colonel for libel unless he retracts his charge that the Democratic nominee for governor of Connecticut has been retrogressive in the matter of workmen's compensation, did not create wild excitement here.
Mr. Roosevelt has refused to discuss that in any way. It is thought, however, that he would not be much disturbed if the judge did bring the matter into the courts. The colonel does not think he will.

Another Strike Fatality.

New York, Nov. 7.—The second death resulting from the express strike occurred Sunday when Peter Roach, aged twenty-two, a striking Adams Express helper, who was shot by John Perry, a guard, during an attack on an Adams Express wagon, died in a hospital. Perry is under arrest.

Club Men in Fatal Accident.

Newburg, N. Y., Nov. 7.—Alexander Ebbel, a chauffeur, was killed and three wealthy and well-known club men were injured Sunday when an automobile, owned and driven by John Ellis Roosevelt, cousin of the former president, overturned on the Pine Bush road.

OKLAHOMA IS ALL AROUSED

"Grandfather Clause" Promises to Give Trouble.

ARMED CONFLICT IS IN SIGHT

Both State and Federal Authorities,
Who Have Clashed on the Construction of New Law Relating to Negro Suffrage, Have Prepared for Battle and It is Among the Possibilities That Blood Will Flow Tomorrow.

Guthrie, Okla., Nov. 7.—Preparations are making for a conflict between federal and state authorities at tomorrow's election over the enforcement of the new "grandfather clause" amendment to the state constitution.
Arrest under federal laws against conspiracy will follow attempts to prevent negroes who can read and write from voting. Federal Attorney John Embry's ruling that a negro's ballot must be accepted if he makes affidavit that he can read and write, has been forwarded to federal commissioners with instructions to enforce the federal laws. Federal authorities have jurisdiction because congressmen will be elected.

The state supreme court has decided the grandfather clause constitutional, and Seth Gordon, the state election board's secretary, has wired all election officials that the returns will be thrown out if they accept affidavits of negroes who attempt to vote as proposed by the federal authorities.

In Oklahoma City 3,000 rounds of ammunition have been received at the armory of the national guard company and all its members have been notified to assemble today for drill, as the company be called out on election day.
Governor Haskell has said that other militia companies will be held in readiness.

Fearing conflict with federal authorities, many election officers have resigned. Acting on instructions from Republican state and county chairmen, all negro preachers in Muskogee, Wagoner and Creek counties at church services yesterday urged every negro who is able to read and write, who was not a slave or descendant of slaves, to try to vote tomorrow. This is to be done to lay the grounds for a contest.
Republicans of Creek county have asked Federal Marshal Grant Victory to send deputies to the polls. The marshal refused, because there is no law giving him authority to take such action.

Rangers to Be on Guard.

Austin, Tex., Nov. 7.—Threatened trouble between political factions at Brownsville on election day caused Governor Campbell to order Adjutant General Newton to proceed to that place with rangers.

THE PANAMA TRIP

President Taft Will Lose No Time in Starting After He Votes.

Washington, Nov. 7.—President Taft left Washington this afternoon at 3 o'clock for Cincinnati, his home city, where tomorrow he will cast his vote.
The president will remain in that city only a few hours. He will reach Washington early Wednesday and will hurry to the White House for a few hours of business. Later Wednesday afternoon he and those who are going with him to Panama will steam out of Washington for Charleston, S. C., where they will be taken aboard the battleship Tennessee, which will sail at 1 o'clock Thursday.
The president expects to spend four days inspecting the work on the canal and visiting the Panama republic, so that he likely will be back in the capital about the 24th of this month, ten days before congress meets. Mr. Taft will write a portion of his forthcoming annual message while enroute to Panama and back. Secretary Norton and White House stenographers will be with him, so that such work can easily be undertaken.

Crippen's Hours Numbered.

London, Nov. 7.—Dr. H. H. Crippen, the American doctor who murdered his wife, Belle Elmore, the music hall singer, must die on the gallows, the court of criminal appeals having decided that there was no ground for a new trial. It is altogether probable that Crippen will be executed tomorrow unless the home secretary interferes, which is considered most unlikely.

sult was the Wilson-Gorman tariff law, which brought Cox's army and soup houses all over the country.

"The Republican party stands on the same principles today as it has always stood on, and does not retrace its steps a foot. We are told that the Republican party is not progressive. I deny that, as it has been the most progressive party since the civil war. It has accomplished all that has been done in the legislative halls of this country, destroyed slavery, destroyed State sovereignty, passed homestead acts, made public improvements at public expense, created the Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Labor, Bureau of Corporations, child labor law, meat inspection and numerous other things. I declare it has been progressive and will continue to be progressive.

"In regard to the tariff question, it has always been a troublesome one. The McKinley bill was misconstrued by magazines and lied about by the metropolitan newspapers. But, after all, I believe men are honest. Bryan preached against the tariff in 1890 and 1892. He says let's have free trade and tariff for revenue only, then everything will be cheaper.

"When Cleveland was elected and Congress passed the Wilson-Gorman bill, then everything was cheaper, but the people did not have the money to buy. Under the protective policy you have everything and there are no soup houses or Coxey armies in the country.

"Some there are who say the Republican party should be thrown out because it favors protection. There is no argument over that. Senator Cummins who is easily the leader of the insurgent senators, agrees with me on that. We are all in favor of protection. Whenever a man gets tired of a protective tariff, then he should go to the Democratic party as straight as the bee goes to its hive.

"The average French laboring man receives $1.15, while the American gets on the average $2.85. What's wrong with the system? The country is enjoying the greatest period of prosperity that it has ever had.

"Some men may pander to the fancy of the mob and play for the popularity, but the Republican party will remain forever. What's the matter with the party?

"What's the matter with some men?" asked the man in the audience.

"There is a disease known as the hookworm which may be the case," replied Mr. Watson.

"But some have said that the Republican party has lied on the tariff," he continued. "I do not believe any men have a monopoly on intellect and virtue. I believe in the saving grace of the American people.

"The trouble with the American people is that they follow the men and not the principle. Roosevelt and Bryan are notable examples. That is the greatest impending danger to the country today. Men are great as are the principles which they embody. I plead for no man, but, rather, for the conviction on which he stands.

"It is charged that the Republican party did not keep its pledges with the Payne-Aldrich bill. There are 4,080 items in the tariff and 2,000 of that number are dutiable. It is not perfect, but it is as near perfect, perhaps, as any tariff will ever be.

"A tariff commission will never solve the problem to suit any one man. Has any one ever heard of a perfect tariff?"

"In the tariff discussion an agreement was finally reached by the Republicans on 3900 items. The great difference was over just five items, linoleum, iron ore, cotton, lumber and woolens. In the Wilson-Gorman bill iron ore was 70 per cent; reduced 30 per cent by Dingley bill and placed at 15 per cent by the last bill. Lumber was reduced 40 per cent, cotton 3 1/2 per cent and woolens remain the same as they have always been in every tariff law despite what your merchant tells you.

"I have no quarrel with any man who disagrees with me. I believe some men who should have voted for it have edged very near to the Democratic party. I decline to be a Democrat.

"Men are said to be great who are turning their backs on the party. I am for the party and heartily indorse the administration of Taft. That is one objection which I have to the manner in which the State campaign has been run this year; not one word of indorsement has been made for the President."

In the last few minutes of his speech, Mr. Watson touched on the high cost of living and the trust question. He held up the principals of the two great parties, that of the Democrats to destroy them and that of the Republicans to regulate them. He pointed out that fourteen of the greatest trusts in the country today are firms manufacturing articles on which there is no duty, using the Standard Oil company as a notable example and then argued that the protective policy could not be the fault. Mr. Watson held that it was necessary to have capital to employ labor and if the party would destroy capital, chaos would result.

In closing, the former congressman heartily endorsed the whole county Republican ticket, the judicial ticket. Congressman Barnard and local press. He laid particular stress on his remarks concerning the reelection of Judge Will M. Sparks, saying that he believed him to be the best fitted candidate for the place. Mr. Watson urged the return of Congressman Barnard in very commendatory terms.

There is no country in the world where there are so many toy shops as in Japan. In all the towns and in most of the villages there is a children's bazaar, and the neighborhood of the principal temples is crowded with stalls containing things to amuse children.

California has been first in the field to recognize the value of seaweed. San Francisco ships annually to China $100,000 worth. This article is a good winter food for oxen, sheep and pigs. In bad times in Ireland it forms a stable food for the peasantry of the west coast.

The export of fish from Norway is growing at an astonishing rate. Already as large as $15,174,000 in 1908, it rose to $19,554,000 in 1909.

The Most Economical because it burns less coal than any other Base Burner on the market.

The Most Powerful because it will heat more space than any other Base Burner of the same size fire bowl with less amount of coal.

The Most Durable because it is made by the best skilled workmen and the very best material that can be obtained.

IMPERIAL UNIVERSAL

Any Base Burner Burns Coal

and any Base Burner will heat your ceiling. But what you want is a Base Burner that will heat your floor more uniformly and with less fuel than any other Base Burner made. It costs no more than any other high grade Base Burner and will pay for itself in a few years in economy of fuel.

The Imperial Universal Base Burner has Patent Duplex grates with outside shaking ring which operates on a practically no friction and will not bind nor stick when stove is hot. All Mica Doors, Ash Pit Doors, Swing Top, Vain Top and automatic magazine cover, are machine faced so as to prevent any leakage of gas. All niddle parts, Fire Bowl, Duplex Grates, Mica Doors, Magazine and Magazine Covers can be easily removed without taking out a bolt or a screw, thus making it very easy for two men to carry the stove anywhere.

Come in and let us demonstrate this stove to you and you will be convinced as well as we are that it is the Greatest Improved and Best Stove on the market.
